Stakeholder analysis

Workshop for selected National CRVS Focal Points
Bangkok, 12-14 December 2017
Who is a stakeholder?

A stakeholder is a person who has an interest of concern in CRVS (something to gain or lose)

Stakeholders can be organizations, groups, departments, structures, networks or individuals

Typical CRVS systems will include multiple stakeholders who work more or less independently
How to conduct a stakeholder analysis

- Step 1 – Identify Your Stakeholders. The first step in your Stakeholder Analysis is to brainstorm who your stakeholders are (stakeholder mapping)
- Step 2 – Prioritize Your Stakeholders (analysis matrix)
- Step 3 – Understand Your Key Stakeholders
CRVS system broad stakeholders

- Institutions most directly involved in CRVS processes
  - Civil Registrar
  - Local government
  - National statistics agency
  - Health
  - UNICEF
  - WHO
  - UNSD
  - World Bank GFF
  - The Global Fund
  - UNECA
  - UNESCAP
  - ECLAC
  - ESCWA
  - IDRC
  - D4H
  - ODA Donors
  - Private sector
  - Civil society organizations
  - Academic institutions

- Institutions that provide input to CRVS
  - Health Information Systems
  - Judicial system
  - Foreign Affairs
  - Police
  - Local Leaders
  - Funerals agents

- Development partners supporting CRVS
  - Population registry
  - National ID agency
  - Citizenship
  - Passports
  - Health insurance
  - Social security
  - Benefits payments
  - Pensions
  - Electoral registry
  - Education
  - Universities
  - Professional associations
  - Private sector
  - Banking system
  - Property
  - Land registry
  - Local government
  - Planning commission
  - Statistics
  - Health data
  - Health planning
  - SDG monitoring
Stakeholder analysis matrix

- High Power, High Interest: Engage Closely and Influence Actively
- High Power, Low Interest: Keep Satisfied
- Low Power, High Interest: Monitor (minimum effort)
- Low Power, Low Interest: Keep Informed

Interior/Home Affairs  |  Justice  |  Health  |  Planning & NSOs  |  Development partners
Thank you!

Please visit:
www.getinthepicture.org